

JRA JUNK REMOVAL MASTERCLASS SERIES

CLASS #2

Own the Map

How junk-removal owners rank in the Google map pack and stay ahead of Google's AI.

Live Tuesday, August 18, 2026 · 2:30 PM ET · Zoom

Taught by Lee Godbold · JRA Junk Removal

WHAT YOU'LL WALK AWAY WITH

One hour. A profile that out-ranks your town.

Why the winners' circle is shrinking

Google's AI now picks ~3 businesses where the list used to show 10.

How Google actually decides

Relevance, distance, prominence, ranked by real 2026 leverage.

Score your own profile, live

A 10-point self-audit you run on your GBP right now.

The JRA review engine

The exact ask, the velocity system, and why detail wins the sale.

The Map Engine + wide radius

The website that ranks your profile, plus geo-grid discipline.

Your phone is a ranking factor

The bridge to answered calls, and your free take-home checklist.

SECTION 1 · 0-5 MIN

THE MAP PACK

The winners' circle is shrinking.

Free, ready-to-buy leads, and Google's AI is cutting the guest list.

WHY THE MAP PACK IS THE PRIZE

The three best leads in town are free.

SPOTS

The map pack shows about three businesses. Everything else is page-two invisible.

PER LEAD

No per-click bill. You earn the position with your profile, then it pays every month.

Ready

TO BOOK

Map-pack searchers aren't researching. They're standing next to the couch, phone in hand.

Google's AI now hands back three names.

Before

~10

names to scroll

After

AI picks for you

“Who can haul out my hot tub this week?” → three businesses, not a list.

Ask Maps is here.

- Gemini conversational layer inside Google Maps, live in the US since March 2026.
- Home services were named among the first categories it affects. That's us.
- It reads your categories, your service descriptions, and your review text to choose.

~32% of the businesses

AI results surface only about a third as many unique names as the classic 3-pack. Fewer seats at the table.

Google is already quoting reviews back to buyers.

What it is

- A Gemini “insider tips” block that pulls sentences straight out of reviews and shows them to the searcher before they ever call.
- Launched November 2025 on US iOS and Android. Officially it's for restaurants, hotels, and venues, for now.
- The reviews you bank this year are the sales copy Google's AI reads next year.

From the field

“I've personally seen it appear on junk removal, late at night, in testing.”

Being tested on home services now.
Set up before the switch, inherit the traffic.

SECTION 2 · 5-11 MIN

THE RANKING LOGIC

How Google decides who wins.

Relevance. Distance. Prominence. And now, an AI layer on top of all three.

Three signals decide the pack. You control two of them.

1 Relevance

Do you match what they typed? Categories, services, and descriptions tell Google what you do.

YOU CONTROL THIS

2 Distance

How close are you to the searcher? A real, visible address puts you on the map they're searching.

PARTLY YOURS

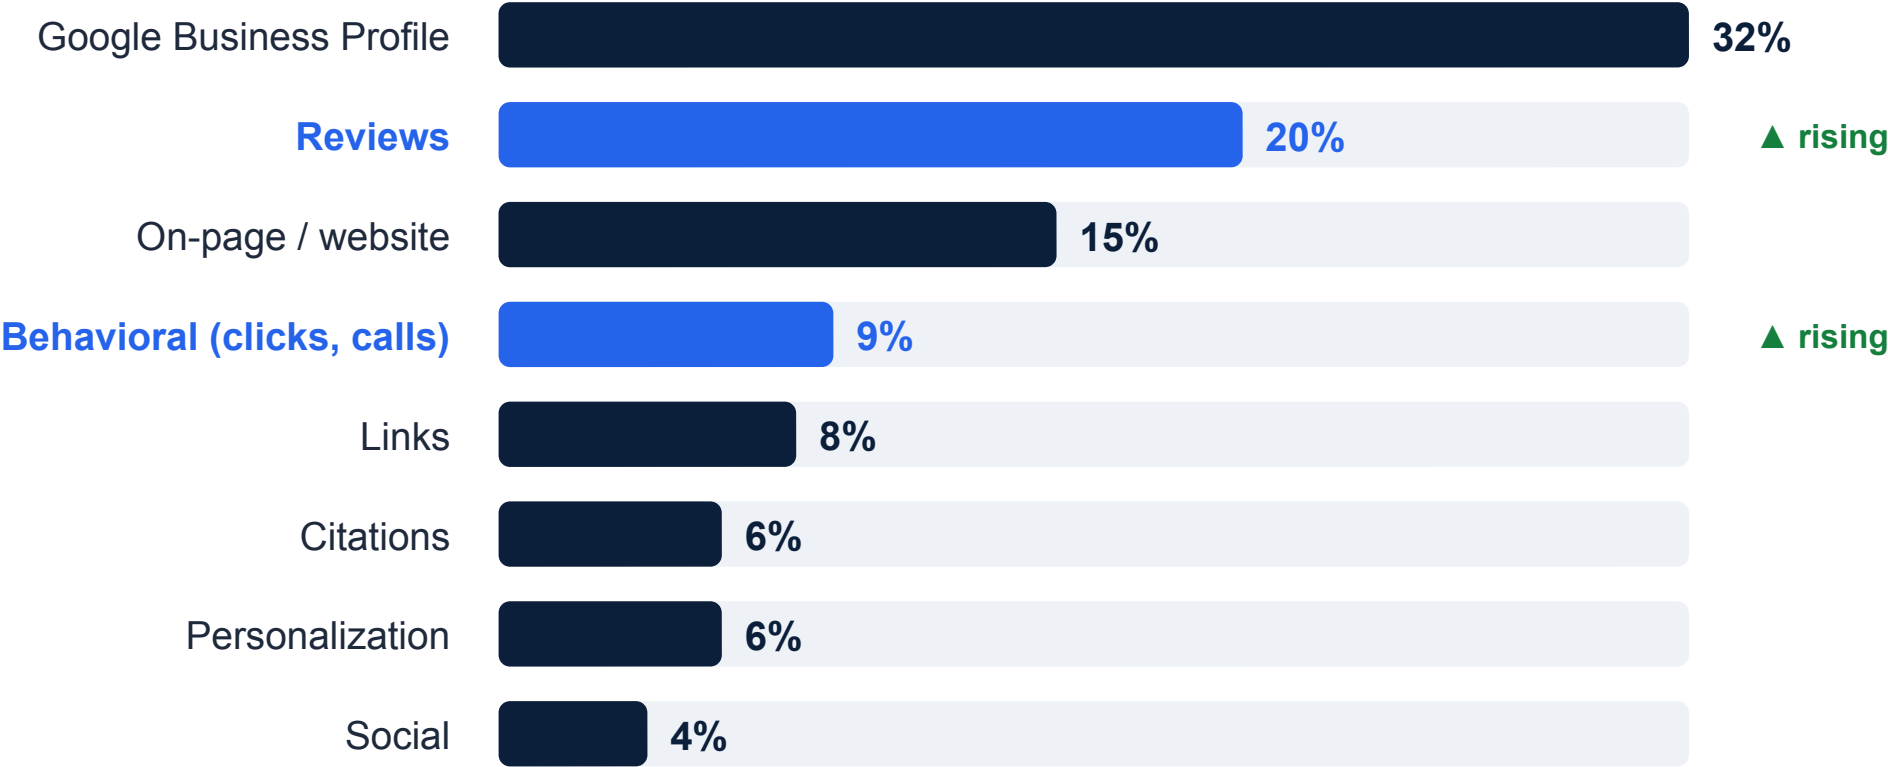

3 Prominence

How established and trusted do you look? Reviews, links, and activity build it over time.

YOU CONTROL THIS

+ The AI layer: Ask Maps and Know-before-you-go read these exact same signals to write their answer. Fix the three, and you feed the AI too.

What actually moves the pack.

Teach in this order. Profile + reviews are half your rank, and reviews and behavioral are the two still rising.

THE ONE LINE TO REMEMBER

Stars get you ranked. Sentences get you picked.

Today

Count, stars, and how recently you got them move the classic map pack. Review wording converts the buyer.

Tomorrow

As Ask Maps folds into Maps, review wording likely becomes a ranking input too. (My forecast, not a promise.)

SECTION 3 · 11-20 MIN

INTERACTIVE

Score your own profile, live.

Pull up your Google Business Profile right now. We're grading it together.

Open your profile. One point per check. Be honest.

Pull it up

Search your business name on Google, or open the Business Profile app. Get to the edit view.

Score 10 checks

Next slide has ten yes/no checks. Give yourself one point for every clean yes.

Read your number

8+ is a strong foundation. Under 6 and you're leaving ready-to-buy leads on the table.

Don't panic at a low score. Every check on the next slide is something you can fix from your phone this week, and it's all on the free checklist you leave with.

Your primary category is the biggest switch on the board.

Primary category is the single strongest relevance signal on your profile. Get it exactly right: “Junk removal service.”

- Add every secondary category you truly serve: dumpster rental, demolition, garbage collection, hauling.
- Categories you can't back up are a spam risk. Only claim what you actually do.
- Match them to your service pages later (that's The Map Engine).

PRIMARY

Junk removal service

SECONDARY

Dumpster rental service

Demolition contractor

Garbage collection service

Hauling contractor

A real, visible address beats a hidden one.

Real, visible address

- Anchors you on the map the searcher is looking at
- Higher pack rank, even for junk companies
- Reads as a real, established business

Hidden service-area only

- Google can't place you where buyers search
- Testing shows hiding the address tanks pack rank
- Looks less established to people and to the AI

Run from your house? You're not stuck. Use a real address you're allowed to use, keep it consistent everywhere, and don't hide it out of habit.

SCORE YOUR OWN PROFILE · GIVE YOURSELF 1 POINT EACH

The 10-check foundation scorecard

☐ Verified profile (you followed Google's video / live prompts)	1	☐ Hours are set, and 24/7 if you truly answer 24/7	6
☐ Primary category is exactly "Junk removal service"	2	☐ A real, visible address (not a hidden service-area)	7
☐ Every service you offer is added as a secondary category	3	☐ Website is linked, and UTM-tagged for analytics	8
☐ Each service has a keyword-rich description	4	☐ Real job photos added in the last 7 days	9
☐ Name, address & phone are identical everywhere (NAP)	5	☐ At least one Google Post in the last 7 days	10

8-10 = strong foundation. 6-7 = fixable this week. Under 6 = you're invisible for leads you should own.

SECTION 4 · 20-26 MIN

THE COMPOUNDING ASSET

The review engine.

Your #2 ranking signal, and the sales copy Google's AI is starting to read.

Count, stars, and recency, not keywords.

RANKING SIGNAL

Reviews are ~20% of pack weight, second only to your profile, and climbing.

Weeks

NOT MONTHS

In testing, a pause of just weeks in new reviews was enough to drop a business's rank.

A review

A WEEK

Beats 50 reviews from two years ago. Recency and velocity are the lever.

THE JRA REVIEW ASK

Say it exactly like this:

“Would you mind sharing how we did and what part of the area your job was?
Please be as descriptive as possible to help future potential customers.”

How we did service quality, in their words

What part of the area feeds Google's local matching

Be descriptive longer reviews convert better

Ask on site. Then four touches over seven days. Then stop.

A review a week beats 50 reviews from two years ago. Velocity is the system, not a one-time push.

Respond to every one. Aim 4.7-4.9. Google first, always.

Respond to every review

Good and bad. It signals an active, real business to Google and to the next reader. A calm reply to a bad review sells better than a wall of fives.

Aim for 4.7-4.9, not 5.0

A perfect 5.0 can actually convert worse: it reads as curated or fake. A few honest 4-star reviews make the whole profile believable.

Google first, match the source

Ask everyone for Google. Add Angi or Nextdoor only when that channel sent the job. Never ask on Yelp. If they don't do Google, take Facebook.

THE HONESTY MOAT · NEVER CROSS THESE

The lines we never cross.

Gating reviews (only asking happy customers)

Writing or scripting the customer's words

Buying or trading for reviews

Fake or virtual addresses

Incentivizing reviews (“$10 off for a 5-star”)

Stuffing keywords into your business name

Why we refuse, and say so out loud: Gating and incentives break FTC rules and Google's policy. Google's AI removed 292M+ fake reviews and 13M+ fake profiles last year. Being unmistakably real is now the winning move, not the boring one.

SECTION 5 · 26-33 MIN

PROVE YOU'RE REAL

Signs of life.

Google now audits realness at a scale it never could before. Be unmistakably real.

Near-daily photos. Weekly Posts. Skip the dead stuff.

Real job photos, near-daily

Before/after from actual jobs. Cheap, honest, and the strongest “we’re active” signal you can send, to buyers and to the AI.

Google Posts are alive

Google keeps investing in Posts (scheduling, recurring). No direct rank lift, but they convert and feed the AI. Schedule one a week.

Don't waste time on Q&A seeding

Google removed the Business Profile Q&A feature in December 2025. Any “seed your own questions” advice you've heard is out of date, don't spend a minute on it.

Post real job photos every week. Multiple photos, not one.

41%

more verified calls and online bookings

Weekly

minimum cadence, multiple photos each time

The caveat: This is JRA's own data from the junk removal profiles we manage, measured as verified phone calls and online bookings. Google publishes no photo cadence.

Your latest social post now shows on your profile.

Linking your socials is an official profile field, and Google now auto-displays your most recent post, uncurated, right on your Business Profile.

- A stale or off-brand last post becomes a searcher's first impression.
- Keep socials active and clean, or the auto-feed works against you.
- Treat it as legitimacy and “signs of life”, the ranking effect is unproven.

Google audits realness at a scale it never could before.

13M+

fake Business Profiles removed in 2025

292M+

fake or policy-violating reviews removed in 2025

The takeaway: Gaming the system is a shrinking game. The durable edge is being unmistakably real, real address, real photos, real reviews, real activity.

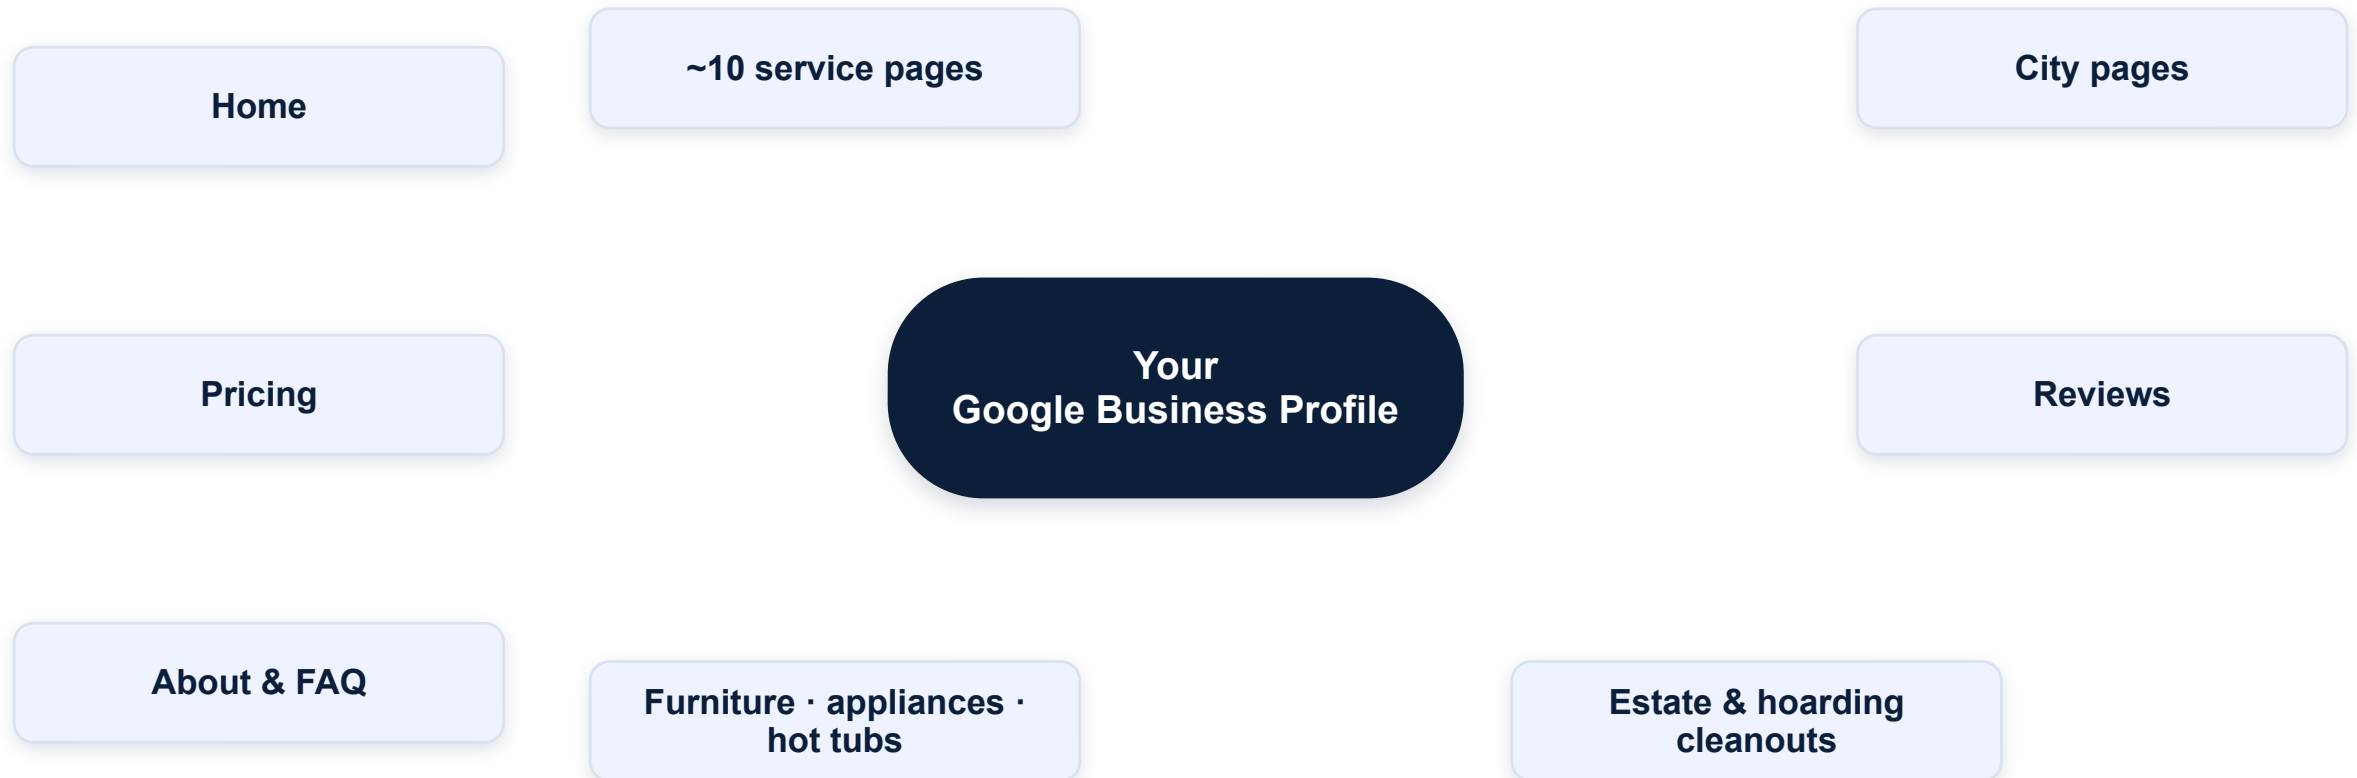

SECTION 6 · 33-39 MIN

THE WEBSITE THAT RANKS YOUR PROFILE

The Map Engine.

Every page mirrors a profile category. Every page points back to the profile.

A website with one job: rank your profile.

Each page mirrors a GBP category and links to the profile. Same words on site and profile = one strong, consistent signal.

Links: the cheapest gap to close, not the engine.

8%

of map-pack weight

Links matter for local-organic and feed prominence, but they are NOT what wins the pack. Reviews, profile, and answered phones are the engine. Close the gap, then stop.

Where to earn them (local relevance > volume)

Chambers of commerce

~$200-300/yr. Join multiple within ~70 miles if your market is competitive.

Local sponsorships & charities

Little leagues, cleanups, school events, a link and real goodwill.

Local news, podcasts, blogs

One local story or interview outperforms a hundred spammy links.

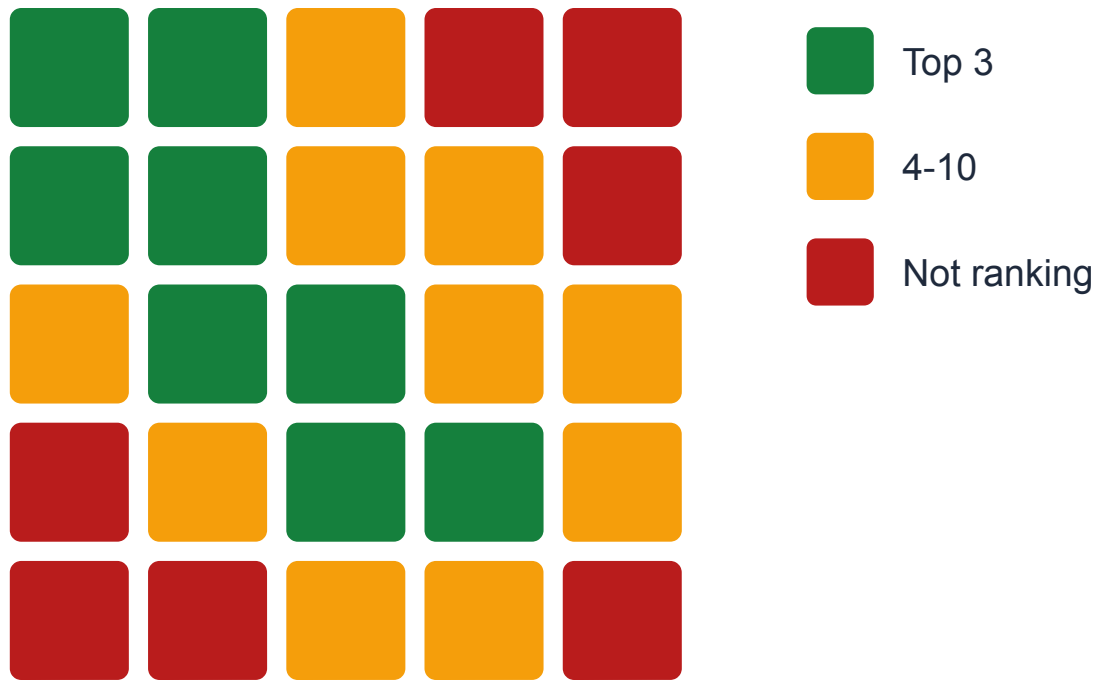

SECTION 7 · 39-44 MIN

MEASURE IT, DEFEND IT, EARN THE RIGHT TO GROW

Advanced & wide radius.

The one metric that matters, the proof, and when you've earned a second location.

% of your map that ranks top-3. That's the number.

A geo-grid scan of your service area

% top-3 is the scoreboard

Not one lucky ranking from your office chair, the share of your whole map where you sit in the pack.

Scan monthly

Same grid, same day each month. Watch the color spread, not a single point.

Work the weakest cells

Red and yellow zones tell you exactly where to point next month's reviews, photos, and pages.

THE PROOF

What this looks like when it works.

[HEAT MAP PLACEHOLDER]

Lee drops in the geo-grid before / after here.

Real % top-3 improvement across the map, no invented numbers.

Beat the #3 guy's count. Report the cheaters.

Clear the review floor

- Every category has a review-count “floor” you must clear to compete.
- Find the competitor sitting at #3 in your market. Count their reviews.
- Out-review them with your velocity system, then keep the drip going.

Report the cheaters

- Keyword-stuffed business names and fake listings break Google's rules.
- Report them through Google's redressal form.
- Removing one cheater ranked above you is the fastest free rank gain there is.

THINKING ABOUT A SECOND LOCATION?

Earn the right to expand.

Three gates before you even consider a second profile:

15+

REVIEWS / MONTH

Your primary must reliably pull 15+ reviews a month before you split any focus.

~18 mo

TO MATURE

A new location takes roughly 18 months to establish. It's a long game, not a quick flag-plant.

Never

FUNNEL REVIEWS

Don't route reviews from your primary to the new spot, your primary loses rank. Each stands on its own.

Master one market first. A strong primary is what earns you the second.

Your phone is a ranking factor.

- 1 Behavioral signals are ~9% and rising Clicks to call, direction taps, and answered calls tell Google you're the real, responsive choice.
- 2 A missed call is a missed signal, twice You lose the booking AND the behavioral nudge that helps you rank. Every ring counts.
- 3 This is where Jenny comes in Next masterclass: how we answer every call 24/7 so the phone stops leaking leads and rank.
